Food News: Potatoes, Eggs, Milk

POTATOES, eggs and milk are in the Irish news to-day.

The scarcity of potatoes continues in Dublin, but to a less extent than during the past two weeks. Market supplies yesterday increased, but they were not sufficient to meet the demand.

There is no cause for alarm, however, a merchant stated yesterday. "We hope to return to normal conditions next week," he said. "At the moment, we are getting two-thirds of our supply, and when the harvest operations are completed there should be supplies of potatoes to meet all requirements." He added that, owing to the unsettled weather, harvesting work had been impeded.

Last winter eggs sold for as high as 5s. and 5s. 6d. per doz., but should that occur this year the Department of Supplies will very probably take action, a reporter was informed yesterday.

Last year the egg trade lost money, and it is felt that if prices go as high this year, with the inevitable falling off in demand, the trade will lose a big sum of money.

At the moment there are ample supplies, due to the fact that housewives have been buying tomatoes and fish, which came on the market in goodly supplies and at considerably easier prices than eggs.

Owing to the present falling off in the demand for eggs, exports are higher than last year. By the second week in October the seasonal scarcity will set in, when prices will jump, and may be controlled.

The usual increase in the price of milk, which this year will take place on October 1, at the rate of ½d. per pint for consumers, will remind the public that they are entering on another period during which, as during last winter, the supply problem will be difficult, possibly becoming acute after Christmas. Those responsible for distribution have been engaged in trying to make arrangements for collection of supplies, but it is expected that transport will again be a big obstacle.

Fixed prices for flake oatmeal and oatmeal are increased because of higher prices for oats. The new prices are advertised to-day.

Mussolini Trembled with Fury

—BERLIN.

THE German News Agency last night quoted an interview with an S.S. officer who took part in the rescue of Signor Mussolini.

The officer said that Signor Mussolini trembled with fury when told of the Italian armistice. "Mussolini," the Storm-Trooper said, "was rescued just in time, because an order for his removal to Sicily had arrived at the very moment we reached the mountain hotel where he was held.

"Mussolini was kept in a room which looked like a prison cell. The walls were naked, and there was only a miserable camp bed, a table and a few chairs."—(Reuter.)

FIFTH ARMY YIELDS GROUND ON SALERNO BRIDGEHEAD

Allies' Forced March from the South

LATEST messages from the Salerno bridgehead this morning state that very heavy fighting is continuing. The position of the Fifth Army is described as "difficult," and yesterday's Allied communiqué disclosed that some ground had been yielded, but that new positions were being consolidated.

A military spokesman at Allied H.Q. said last night:—"At the end of a day of bitter fighting the situation is a little more in the Fifth Army's favour."

The Eighth Army, it is reported, has made a forced march from the south, and reduced the gap between it and the Fifth Army to sixty-seven miles.

(From Reuter and A.P. War Correspondents.)

Small pieces of ground changed hands repeatedly in yesterday's fierce conflict around Salerno, and the Germans made their heaviest and most determined attempt to drive the Fifth Army into the sea by sharp thrusts from Cevilla and Armoniana, which are on high ground, overlooking the entire southern portion of the Allied foothold in the Sele River valley.

TANK DRIVES

Bitter close-quarter combats raged along the whole front from Salerno to Agropoli, with both sides throwing in strong reinforcements of troops and armour. The German attacks were strongly supported by tanks, which were repeatedly driven back by blistering fire.

The Fifth Army was forced to give more ground in the past 24 hours, but is now fighting fiercely for a narrow coastal strip, and is expected to be able to hold out until General Montgomery's troops arrive.

If the Eighth Army can keep up the pace—a mile an hour—they should reach the plain of Salerno to-morrow.

Algiers radio stated: "The American troops have been able to shorten their lines and to reinforce their positions to resist enemy attacks. The outcome of the battle will largely depend on the tenacity with which the troops of General Clark hold on to their positions.

FLUCTUATING

"The battle-front has been fluctuating. Attacks and counter-attacks alternate in rapid succession. Towards last night the American troops had to give up some of the ground gained in the southern sector of the bridgehead, but are holding fast to the narrow coastal strip. Fresh reinforcements are arriving on the beaches."

The intervention of Allied heavy cruisers which were shelling the Germans had "definitely slowed down the Allied retreat," said Vichy radio last night.

Constant German counter-attacks from the high ground commanding the Salerno Plain forced the Fifth Army to fall back in front of Altavilla and Albanella. Some reports reaching Allied H.Q. suggest that the Allied troops also pushed forward at some points.

Reinforcements are still pouring into the bridgehead, which is now being established with the aid of guns of cruisers and destroyers cruising in Salerno Gulf. The holiday island of Capri, off the Sorrento Peninsula, has now been captured.

The position of the Fifth Army is difficult, but the British and American troops are hitting back resolutely at the non-stop attacks by large German tank forces. One American combat team knocked out 13 tanks.

WAVES OF TANKS

The panzers have been making tremendous bids to smash through and cut the Fifth Army in two. Mark VI. Tigers have been thrown against the bridgehead in repeated waves. Above the plain German 88 mm. guns on cliffs have bombarded the Allied positions in an effort to clear a path for the tanks.

Each day the Allied position is strengthening, and it is confidently expected at Allied H.Q. that the Fifth Army will work out its destiny.

Haig Nicholson, Reuter's Special Correspondent, in a late despatch from Allied H.Q., states:—"Latest reports from the Salerno battlefield say the position is still serious, but there is nothing to justify German radio claims that they are driving the Allies back into the sea.

"Every hour the British and American forces become stronger as reinforcements and supplies reach the beaches."

HEIGHT HELD

Another Allied correspondent states that British troops are holding a thickly-wooded height, despite shelling.

Captain Sertorius, Military Correspondent of the German Overseas News Agency, commented:—"It appears that the Allied bridgehead is lost, unless the Allied Command can manage to bring up reinforcements."

The German News Agency said: "Although the resistance of the Americans at Salerno stiffened surprisingly last evening, with the help of the artillery of numerous warships concentrated in all parts of the American sector, a considerable part of the German operations have already been accomplished."

German radio claimed: "The bulk of the 37th and 45th U.S. Infantry Divisions, the 1st U.S. Tank Division, and the 10th British Army Corps have been destroyed by the German forces."

Big Air and Naval Support for 5th Army

WITH complete co-ordination never before obtained Allied aircraft and warships have joined in to support the Fifth Army. The full weight of the North-West African Airforce was concentrated yesterday on a small area.

Strong forces of cruisers and destroyers are pumping hundreds of rounds into the Germans' elevated positions, and one American cruiser fired 355 rounds in one day.

The air effort went on non-stop, with German positions and roads constantly bombed and strafed in a 10 to 15 miles area round Eboli. Light bombers made more than 600 sorties, and the fighter-bombers over 500 attacks.

The Allied air fleets hit with devastating power at a small strip of territory east of Salerno. Fortresses, Marauders and Mitchells were diverted from their customary long-range bombing and turned into close-range mobile artillery. R.A.F. Wellingtons visited the same area at night.—(Reuter, A.P. and P.A.)

Allies' Losses in Sicily

The attack on Italy is the beginning of the war as far as the United States is concerned, Mr. Henry Morgenthau, United States Secretary of Treasury, broadcast last night, states Reuter and Associated Press messages from Washington.

Denouncing "foolish and childish optimism," Mr. Morgenthau disclosed that the conquest of Sicily had cost the Allies material losses ranging up to 54 per cent.

We are holding on in Naples area, said Mr. Morgenthau, but just barely, and with a tremendous loss of life. The situation is critical. "In any event, we would still have to drive north about 500 miles, with the Germans fighting every inch of the way. At the very least, it would take months, and if and when we conquer Italy, we will still be nowhere near Germany."

8th Army Pushing Against Foggia

A MILITARY observer in Washington stated last night that Americans are pinning strong hopes on General Montgomery, "who is mustering all his strength to meet the Salerno crisis."

The Eighth Army's eastern force is advancing on Foggia, Vichy radio states, quoting Berlin military circles. Occupation of Foggia, it added, would permit an advance against Salerno from the north-east.

Algiers radio said the Eighth Army has captured many airfields, and Allied fighter cover is growing hourly at Salerno.

Mussolini Issues Party Proclamation

THE following proclamation by Signor Mussolini was broadcast yesterday by Fascist Government radio, states Reuter:—

"To faithful comrades all over Italy—to-day, September 15, 1943, year 21 of the Fascist era, I resumed the supreme direction of Fascism in Italy.

"I appoint Alessandro Pavolini as temporary Secretary of the National Fascist Party, which from to-day onwards will call itself the Republican Fascist Party. I order that all authorities, military, political, administrative, educational and others who have been removed by the capitulation Government will immediately resume their posts and functions.

"I order the immediate reconstitution of all party organisations with the following tasks:—

"(a) To extend daily and comradely collaboration to the German military forces which are fighting on Italian soil against the common enemy; (b) to extend practical and immediate help to the people in the material and moral spheres; (c) to examine the situation of party members in relation to their conduct in face of the coup d'état and the capitulation, and to subject the traitors and cowards to exemplary punishment.

"I order the reconstitution of all the formations and special branches of the voluntary Militia of National Security."

Pavolini was the former Italian Minister of Propaganda.

According to Swiss radio, all the Ministers of the Badoglio Government who remained in Rome have been arrested by the Germans.

A new meeting between Herr Hitler and Signor Mussolini will take place this week, according to the Berlin correspondent of the Swiss Neue Zuercher Zeitung, quoted by Paris radio.—(Reuter.)

Rome Appeal for Food

In Northern Italy the Italians are still resisting the Germans, states Algiers radio.

Rome radio yesterday appealed for people to bring stocks of food into the city.—(Reuter.)

Swedish Fears

Berlin last night quoted a speech by General Thoernele, Swedish C.-in-C., in which he warned his countrymen of the possibility of a flare-up in the war near Sweden.—(Reuter.)

Big Mine Strike May End To-day

LATE last night it was announced that an 18 years old mine-worker, whose imprisonment had resulted in a strike involving 15,000 men at twenty Nottinghamshire pits, was to be released.

The Regional Controller of Fuel and Power, Mr. Raymond Evershed, K.C., made this statement:—

"The youth, Sydney Page, whose refusal to obey a direction to go to work underground at Newstead Colliery resulted in his conviction and sentence to one month's imprisonment, has now changed his mind, and has expressed a willingness and desire to work underground. He has signed an undertaking to that effect.

"In these circumstances the Home Secretary has authorised Page's release, and he is being released from Lincoln Gaol early on Thursday morning."

Yesterday trade union officials were appealing to the men to return to work.

"MOB RULE"

Mr. Evershed, in an earlier statement, said: "It is clear that the feeling among the miners on this matter is very strong. It seems to be the view of the men concerned that it is wrong to compel men to go underground against their wishes. The view that it is wrong to resort to compulsion in time of war seems to me wholly untenable. Without the power of compulsion the Government could not conduct the war at all. It follows that the strike must be regarded as one aimed at the authority of the State. Whatever the motive, its effect must be to substitute something like mob rule for properly constituted government."

Meanwhile, a threatened strike of 1,000 Northumberland miners seems to have been averted. They had announced that they would stop work if Joseph Lashley, an 18 years old surface worker, was sent to prison for refusing to work underground. At Newcastle, yesterday, Lashley was fined £5, with the alternative of 28 days' imprisonment.

Coloured Cricketer to Sue Hotel

Proceedings have been instituted in the British High Court on behalf of Mr. Learie Constantine, the West Indies cricketer, against Imperial London Hotels, Ltd., for damages for alleged failure to receive and lodge him at their hotel.

The case arises from a recent incident at the Imperial Hotel, Russell square, London.

A resolution dealing with the incident was carried at a meeting of the Chester and Warrington Methodist Synod at Chester yesterday.

Dr. Eric Duncanson, of Bangor, moving the resolution, which protested against "the humiliating discrimination that is being meted out in certain quarters to coloured people in this country," said that there were a great number of West Indian technicians in the North.

War Risk Rates

New York marine underwriters announced yesterday that war risk rates for shipments between the United States and the United Kingdom and Eire are to be reduced to 4 per cent. in view of Allied military and naval progress. This is the lowest rate since 1940.

Scheme for Mass Treatment of Tuberculosis

TUBERCULOSIS is one hundred times as dangerous as scarlatina, fifty times as dangerous as measles, twenty-five times as dangerous as whooping cough, five times as dangerous as diarrhœa or enteritis, three times as dangerous as influenza, and twice as dangerous as pneumonia or bronchitis.

Everybody has had tuberculosis; ninety-eight per cent. of the people cured themselves without doctors, but two per cent. lost the fight in the initial stages.

These statistics were given by Professor T. W. Dillon, of the Red Cross Anti-Tuberculosis Committee, at the Municipal Authorities of Ireland annual conference in Wexford yesterday.

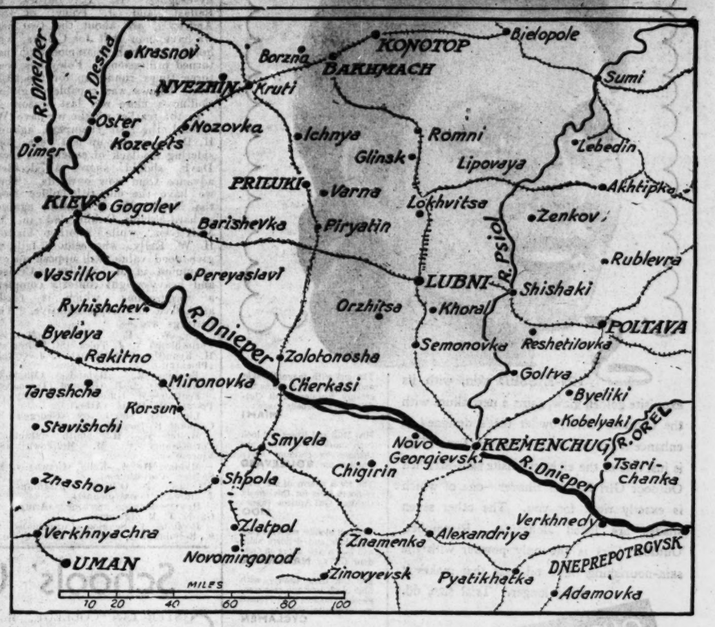
Local authorities, he said, spent £500,000 and the Government spent £400,000 every year on it, and it cost the National Health Society more than any other disease and as much as many other diseases together. The tuberculosis death-rate could be brought almost to nil in a few years if enough money was spent.

The working classes had eighty per cent. of the tuberculosis in the country. They could not hope to touch the problem until they could tell tuberculosis patients with their dependents that they would look after these dependents as well as the patients' jobs and homes.

In England a tuberculosis patient with a family got 52s. 6d. per week. His rent and any special expenses were paid and his job would be restored to him when he was cured. The Red Cross had a scheme to engage in mass treatment of the population in an area of 15,000 persons at a cost of £1,500 a year. The cost would be met by the Red Cross in the first year, and the local authority would meet increasing proportions of the cost until, in the last year, they would be paying all. This scheme would produce a two-third reduction in the death-rate.

They were hoping to get the equipment to carry out mass radiography to identify tuberculosis patients, and their efforts to get this were being helped by the Department of Local Government.

More than half of the money spent would go into the provision in the homes of patients of things which they lacked. The family in danger of tuberculosis should be put in a privileged position.



Russian Threat to Entire German Defence

AS Moscow's guns last night saluted the capture of Nyezhin—announced by Marshal Stalin in an Order of the Day—the Red Army was pressing on beyond this important railway town, occupying a key position at the outer approaches to Kiev, now only 65 miles away.

On the banks of the Middle Desna, says a Moscow cable, a struggle on a really gigantic scale is raging, and threatens to blow a hole in the entire German plan to hold the river as a winter line of defence.

Nyezhin, the last big town on the railway running south-west to the "number of Russian cities," fell after two days' stiff fighting. In his Order of the Day, Marshal Stalin described the town as "a most important centre of enemy resistance on the road to Kiev."

Forty miles south-east of Nyezhin, another Soviet force has captured several more townships in its drive for Priluki, one of the easterly buttresses of Kiev. In front of Priluki, now less than 30 miles away, the Russians are fighting in the streets of Romni, the Ukrainian town from which Guderian's Panzer Army slashed its way north two years ago to seize Bryansk and Orel.

DESNA BREACH

At one of the points most favourable for defence, the Desna River line has been smashed, and all the indications are that fighting is swinging increasingly in favour of the Russians.

Below Kharkov, the Russians are pushing ahead in wide movements towards the key strongholds of the Dnieper loop and the Crimea railway.

Over 60 townships have been captured in another six to ten miles advance towards Zaporozhe and Melitopol, and to the north of these sectors similar headway and the capture of 120 localities have been counted in the drive for Pavlograd, the north-eastern outpost of the Dnepropetrovsk.

BRYANSK

Heavy fighting is taking place on the Desna's banks close to Bryansk as the Red Army battle their way into the city. Although the Germans stated on Tuesday that they had evacuated the city, the Russians still report fighting. Last night's Soviet communiqué said: "In the Bryansk direction our troops continued their offensive and captured the town of Dyachkovo, 20 miles north of Bryansk."

Intense fighting is going on against the German wedge which has been protecting Poltava. The wedge is being punched from two sides, and once it goes, and Krasnograd falls, the way is wide open for a swift advance towards the Dnieper across the Psel River.

Russian troops have penetrated into the north-eastern suburbs of Novorossisk, said German radio last night.

TIME ELEMENT

The period of so-called "roadlessness" is now not many weeks off, and the time element is playing an increasingly important part in the problem of how far the Soviet advance will go before summer campaigning conditions disappear. My own estimate, says Harold King, Reuter's Special Correspondent in Moscow, is that when winter comes the Red Army will be on the offensive again in full force.—P.A. and Reuter.)

German Radio said last night that local breaches had been made in the German lines near Belyi, north of Smolensk.

Lae Under Fire of Allies' Guns

Lae, last of the big Japanese bases in New Guinea, is now under fire from Allied artillery, and Allied troops are within five miles of the base, according to Reuter's Special Correspondent at Allied headquarters, South-West Pacific. At Salamanua, the Japanese are fleeing in small groups to the hills and jungles in the north-west, where their destruction is certain. Allied forces pushing towards Lae, west of the Busu River, have destroyed two strong points and captured Newyanga, halfway between the Busu River and Malahang aerodrome. Western forces are also driving forward along the Markham Valley road, where the Japanese have been driven from two prepared positions.

Positions along the Markham River and the village of Enarotali near Paniai Lake, in the north-west sector, have been attacked. Heavy bombers hit recently aerodromes at But and Dagua and building areas at Finschhafen. In a raid on aerodromes in the Wewak sector 63 tons of bombs fell on runways and dispersal areas, and between 20 and 25 parked aircraft were left in flames. Of 40 Japanese fighters which intercepted eight were shot down and four probably destroyed. The Allies lost three fighters.

BURMA READY

Allied troops in India and on the borders of Burma are only waiting for the word to begin their drive against the Japanese in Burma. Air and ground strength has been built up and preparations to maintain lines of communications, and to services the men and machines completed. Air Chief Marshal Sir Richard Peirse said in New Delhi yesterday: "The campaigning season is just about to begin, so let us go to it. We have covered the face of the country with aerodromes and great training establishments, and an enormous organisation for maintenance, repairs and salvage."

Archbishop of York in Moscow

Dr. Cyril Forster Garbett, Archbishop of York since 1942, who has always urged a better understanding between Britain and Russia, has arrived in Moscow, says Reuter.

"The two nations must get to know each other better through literature and a wide interchange of visits," he has declared.

The Archbishop is visiting Russia as the head of a Church of England delegation. The visit is thus strictly ecclesiastical and non-political.

The Dean of Canterbury (Dr. Hewlett Johnson), commenting on the visit of the Archbishop of York to Moscow, said:—"The Soviet Union does not interfere with the convictions or meddle with the private affairs of religious bodies; nor is any one church allowed to dominate the others. Religious communities, numbering some 30,000, possess full rights of ritual and worship and of the election of their own office-holders."

One Dancer to Nine Square Feet

How many dancers go into nine square feet? The Minister for Justice thinks the answer should be one, and one only, according to Mr. A. V. G. Thornton, State Solicitor for Mayo.

Stating that he had received instructions from the County Manager at the request of the Minister for Justice, Mr. Thornton applied to Mayo District Justices to make the "only one dancer to every nine square feet" idea a condition before granting dance hall licences.

District Justice G. Guy, at Kiltimagh, and District Justice H. Hamilton, at Claremorris and Ballyhaunis, have turned down the application, but both have requested hall owners to take all necessary steps to prevent overcrowding.

Home for National Stud

Sandley Estate, Gallingham, Dorset, has been purchased by the British Ministry of Agriculture for the National Stud, at a cost of £16,500. The property, which was owned by the late Lord Furness, was once the home of the Gilltown Stud, for the purchase of which, it was reported some weeks ago, the Government was negotiating.

Twopence per bicycle was the maximum fee fixed by District Justice Reddin, at Kilmainham yesterday, to be charged by the licensees of dance halls in the County Dublin for the parking of bicycles.

Jail for Grocer Who Appealed Against Fine

Thomas Stewart, grocer, of Ormeau road, Belfast, who was fined £2,500 for having dealt in 137,000 razor blades imported from Eire, appealed yesterday, in Belfast Recorder's Court, against the severity of the penalty, and also against a fine of £170 for having harboured 570 lbs. of tea with intent to evade export prohibition to Eire.

In the case of the tea, Judge Black cancelled the fine and substituted a sentence of two months' imprisonment. He reduced the fine in respect of the razor blades to £1,000, or, in default, six months' imprisonment.

He said that for anyone to engage in a deal which would lead to a quarter ton of tea being sent out of the United Kingdom to a neutral country was an offence that could not be adequately met by a fine.

Counsel defending said that Stewart had paid £900 for the razor blades, which were made in Eire, and had sent them to a man in Manchester, who was to pay £1,074 for them. He had, however, only received about £40.

Paris and its suburbs were raided yesterday evening, according to a Paris broadcast. "A.-A. batteries were in action, and several 'planes were shot down. There were many victims," said Vichy Radio.—(Reuter.)

FINE BOXING BILL

AMATEUR boxing followers who go to the Stadium tomorrow night will get remarkably good value for the money they pay to see the Corinthian Club's tournament. It is doubtful if a better programme could be devised from the talent available at the present time. To start with the fly-weights, W. E. Barnes, of Belfast, and J. Foley, of St. Andrew's, are about the two best we have, now that Joe Collins, who holds the Irish championship, has turned professional. Foley has been three times runner-up for the title, while Barnes was capable of giving Collins a close run last season.

In the feather-weight we have W. Gifford, the Irish champion, against H. Davis, runner-up last year; considering his lack of experience then, Davis should show a decided advance from now onwards. Then we have the one title-holder from the North, W. J. Smith, against a hard-hitting Dublin lad in M. McKeown; while another visitor, H. W. Kelly, who seldom fails to give good value, will oppose an ex-champion in M. Sadlier. Cruiser and heavy-weight contests complete a programme which is really attractive and representative. The pairings are:—

Fly—W. E. Barnes (Mackie's Corinthians) v. J. Foley (St. Andrew's); H. Kennedy (Corinthians) v. J. O'Neill (Phoenix).

Bantam—R. Hyland (Mackie's Corinthians) v. R. Glennon (Terenure).

Feather—W. Gifford (North City) v. Private H. Davis (Army).

Light—G. Smyth (St. George's) v. Corporal P. Dowdall (Army).

Welter—W. H. Smith (Mackie's Corinthians) v. M. McKeown (St. Vincent's).

Middle—H. W. Kelly (Crown) v. M. Sadlier (Corinthians).

Cruiser—D. O'Brien (Corinthians) v. J. Rowan (Sandymount).

Heavy—Gunner Swainé (Army) v. Garda J. Montgomery.

Juvenile—F. Scanlon (Corinthians) v. S. Bermingham (Imperial Tobacco Co.).

Opinions on St. Leger

THE St. Leger will be run at Newmarket on Saturday, and that it is regarded as a very open race can be gathered from the fact that at the call-over of the card on Monday last the favourite, Straight Deal, winner of the Derby, was quoted at 4 to 1. opinions of owners, trainers and jockeys are:—

Herringbone — W. Earl (trainer)—Herringbone is very well. I believe she has a very fair each-way chance.

Kingsway and Merchant Navy—J. Lawson (trainer)—Both have thrived on their preparation. I think they will stay the distance. Mr. A. K. Saunders (owner)—The going will suit Kingsway, and he is certain to give a good account of himself. C. Richards (jockey)—Merchant Navy is sure to stay the distance, and I think he has a good chance. Mr. A. Hedley (owner)—I think my horse, Merchant Navy, has a good chance. He is improving very fast.

Nasrullah and Umidaad—Frank Butters (trainer)—Both my horses are well. I think the altered state of the going should be in Umiddad's favour. E. C. Elliott (jockey)—I think the race will probably be between Umiddad and Tropical Sun, and that my mount will outstay the filly and win. M. Beary (jockey)—Nasrullah has done everything I have asked him at exercise. There is no doubt he is a very good horse.

Persian Gulf — Lady Zia Wernher (owner)—"I have given up hope that Persian Gulf will win the St. Leger. Capt. C. Boyd-Rochfort (trainer)—Persian Gulf has done very well, and if the going is good I believe he has a good each-way chance.

Ribbon—E. Smith (jockey)—Ribbon is better. I think, than she was even before the Oaks. In my opinion she is sure to run well and improve on her last race.

Straight Deal — W. Nightingall (trainer)—"Straight Deal has done extraordinarily well. His last race did him a lot of good, and I am very hopeful." T. H. Carey (jockey)—"I think Straight Deal will win."

Tropical Sun — Gordon Richards (jockey)—"Tropical Sun is jumping out of her skin with fitness, and will run very well."

Why Hurry—N. Cannon (trainer)—Why Hurry has pleased me since her last race. She will stay. Her chance will be all the better if the going is "easy."

Whirlaway—Mr. J. Olding (owner)—Providing the going is on the soft side Whirlaway has a very good outside chance.

Donnelly's Goal Beats Dundalk

BOHEMIANS..... 1 DUNDALK..... 0

For the second time in a week Bohemians defeated Dundalk, their success in yesterday's match at Dalymount Park being in the second round of the Leinster Senior Cup. The only goal was scored by Donnelly, who, when attempting to clear a corner kick by Whiston, headed into his own goal. This was about five minutes from half-time.

Bohemians had the better of the play, but the exceptional form of the Dundalk full-backs, Crowley and Hearty, and of Matier, in goal, prevented a score by any of the home team. M. O'Flanagan was always dangerous, but his shot snap-shooting was erratic at times. Lauders gave a fine display in the Bohemian goal, and the full-backs, Coyle and Richardson, were sound.

Schools' Union Golf

CISTERCIAN COLLEGE, Roscrea, scored their second success in three years in the Union of Irish Schools' Shield competition at Milltown yesterday, their victory being largely due to the very excellent score of E. Dalton and T. P. Hogan, who, under most adverse conditions, had the fine score for a foursome of 72½, or 1½ better than the bogey of the course.

It was blowing an exceptionally close finish, only half a stroke separating the winners and Castleknock College. The holders were Presentation College, Bray, but they were eighth in the list of aggregates. Twenty unions competed.

At the supper, which followed, the chair was occupied by Mr. Edward Dwyer, Blackrock College, and captain of the Royal Dublin Club.

Sound Tennis by Kenny

THE Irish hard court tennis championships are pursuing a somewhat uneventful course; the four "logical" choices for the men's singles semi-final have reached that stage, and the pairings are C. A. Kemp v. A. E. Fannin and R. F. Egan v. F. Kenny. In the women's singles Miss E. F. Lombard will oppose Mrs. E. G. Lister in the final for the third successive tournament.

Those who anticipated another good victory for the junior champion, J. D. Hackett, were disappointed, for he was well mastered by Kenny after a close first set. In the difficult breeze which was blowing last evening Kenny hit his drives much more firmly than his young opponent, and length and pace prevailed over Hackett's attempts to stage a volleying attack. This latter policy might have had more success had not Hackett so frequently forgotten the importance of keeping his eye on the ball.

In taking eleven games off Fannin in two sets, F. W. Peard, the Lansdowne player, showed an advance on his previous form in singles. He is still erratic off the ground, but some of his overhead work reached a high standard, and he certainly knows how to run.

Miss Lombard swept aside Miss Blayney's challenge without any difficulty in the first of the women's semi-finals; the loser did not appear to have any plan of campaign worked out, either in attack or defence. The other match, however, provided a stern battle between Mrs. Lister and Miss Good with practically nothing to choose between them. Results:—

MEN'S SINGLES CHAMPIONSHIP
Quarter-finals.

A. E. Fannin beat F. W. Peard—9-7, 6-4.

WOMEN'S SINGLES CHAMPIONSHIP.
Semi-finals.

Miss E. Lombard beat Miss M. Blayney—6-0, 6-2.

Mrs. E. G. Lister beat Miss B. Good—6-1, 4-6, 6-4.

Two Judges to Sit at Green Street

TWO judges will sit simultaneously at Green Street Courthouse during the Dublin Circuit Criminal Court session which begins on October 4th, owing to the big number of cases that have to be heard.

The list of cases is the longest that has been known of for many years. Generally only one Court is held at Green street, but arrangements are at present being made to accommodate two. Of the 91 cases already sent in for hearing the majority deal with house-breaking, conspiracy, larceny and receiving. There are also cases of malicious damage, fraudulent conversion, false pretences, attempted suicide, riot and unlawful assembly, concealment of birth and manslaughter. There will be some cases of indecency.

No date has yet been fixed for the sitting of the Central Criminal Court. Up to the present ten cases are listed for hearing before it. These include two cases of murder from Co. Cork and Co. Donegal, and seven cases of infanticide from Dublin, Donegal, Galway, Mayo, Tipperary, Meath and Westmeath.

Charged with Having Too Much Sugar

Thomas Fellowes (29), Drummond place, Harold's Cross, was returned for trial by District Justice Lennon, in Dublin yesterday, charged with having unlawfully obtained, during a ration week sugar in excess of the exchange value of a coupon, and with offering a reward to a member of the Garda Siochana. He was remanded until 4th January, 1944, on charges of illegal possession of 3 cwts. 4 st. of sugar at Harcourt terrace, with illegal possession of a second lot of sugar at his residence, and with illegal possession of £40 in notes.

Guard Harkin said he saw a motor lorry, with only one front light, at Harcourt terrace on the night of 20th August. He stopped the car and asked the driver why he had only one front light. The driver got down and settled the second front light, and asked if he could go. Guard Harkin asked him what he had in four sacks on the lorry, and Fellowes first said he had a few sacks of turf. At the third time of asking, defendant said the sacks contained sugar.

On the way to the police station Fellowes said: "Forget about it. You can have a sack of sugar for yourself or a ton of turf." At Lad lane station when searched, £40 in notes were found on him.

The District Justice refused an application by Mr. McGonagle, solicitor, for the return of the £40 to defendant.

Public-house: No Profits

The public-house apparently had not been making any profits, commented Mr. Garrett Gill (instructed by Messrs. Barry C. Galvin and Son), when applying to Mr. Justice Overend in the High Court, Dublin, yesterday, on behalf of the West Cork Bottling Company, Ltd., Deal Yard lane, Bandon, for a creditors' grant of administration of the estate of Mrs. Julia Kidney, publican, late of Dunmanway, Co. Cork, to their secretary, Joseph Brennan, Kilbrogan House, Bandon.

Mr. Gill said that Mrs. Kidney left everything she had in trust for her only young children. Her debts amounted to £906 and her assets were valued at only £485. Notice of this application had been served on Mrs. Kidney's husband, John, who was working in England and resided at Edgware road, London, but he had not appeared.

Giving a grant under the 78th Section of the Probate Act, Mr. Justice Overend asked counsel to convey to the administrator that, as there were minor children concerned, he should exercise the greatest care in scrutinising the validity of all debts, and, he added, that the papers used in the application should be sent to the General Solicitor for Minors.

A few top lots reached recent rates, but generally prices were 10/- per cwt. down. At Balbriggan sale entries were about the same as last week, but there was a great improvement in the standard of weights and quality. A fair demand was experienced at about late rates. Aged bullocks made up to £35, heifers £31 10/-, medium-sized stores £31 15/- to £23 others £22 to £16 2/6. Calved and in-calf cows £33 10/- to £27.

Beechams' Dividend Increased

SATISFACTORY dividend statements were made yesterday by a number of important companies. One of the most interesting is the announcement that the first interim dividend for the current year of Beechams' Pills is to be 7½ p.c. in place of the usual 7 p.c.

In the past three years the company has paid three dividends each year, two interims of 7 p.c. and a final of 14½ p.c. for 1941 and 1942, this being raised to 16 p.c. for the year to March 31 last. Much larger dividends were paid before the war, but in 1938 and 1939 the capital was increased by 100 and 200 p.c. by the distribution of capital bonuses. The Deid. capital is now £1,512,500, all in 2/6 shares (quoted at 17/9).

Gaumont British Picture Corporation is again paying a dividend of 6 p.c. on its Ord. shares. Dividends were resumed last year with the distribution of 6 p.c., after six years in which no payment was made.

Ransome and Marles Bearing Co. is to pay a final dividend of 11 p.c., making 20 for the sixth year in succession. The capital is £700,000, all in £1 units (quoted at 85/-).

The full report of South African Breweries, Ltd., shows that the dividend for the year was reduced from 17½ p.c. to 15 p.c. (22½ tax free). Profits were £1,413,562 (against £1,275,126), but the taxation liabilities, amounting to £1,140,000, were £207,000 higher than in the previous year.

Stothert and Pitt, engineers and iron-founders, is repeating its dividend and bonus of 12½ p.c. The general reserve again receives £20,000 and £30,920 is carried forward (against £24,079 brought in). The £1 shares are 39/-.

RUBBER PROBLEMS

The serious problems facing the Ceylon rubber industry are dealt with by Mr. P. J. Burgess, the Chairman of Doranakande Rubber Estates, Ltd., in a statement to the shareholders. Although work on the estates, he said, had not been interrupted by the war, it was very naturally dominated by war-time conditions. The urgent need for rubber induced high crops to be harvested. The pace which had been set was too hot to last, and could only be accepted when areas subject to it were scheduled for replanting in the near future.

The sounder policy was to harvest heavy crops, but to stop short of permanent damage to trees from which further crops will be needed. That policy had been followed by their company. Costs of every kind were increasing, and would be an important factor after the war in the competition with synthetic substitutes. After the war it should be possible to avoid an economic war between the natural and synthetic rubber interests, to the benefit of both.

Their company had increased its working profit, but taxation absorbed the bulk of the increase. Nevertheless, it had been possible to increase the dividend from 1d. to 1½d. per share.

OILS BRIGHTER

On the London Stock Markets yesterday operators displayed a desire to await further developments in the war before adding to their commitments.

The Kaffir market was fairly good. "Johnnies" were in demand, and Lydenburg shares jumped 1/6 to 39/6. S.A. Towns, at 22/9, were better, and Western Holdings also went ahead. Anglo-American Corp., after gaining 1/3 at 96/3, fell to 95/.

The Oil market brightened up, and Anglo-Iranian led a rise among the leaders with a gain of 1/10½ at 108/10½. Burmah put on 2/6 to 82/6.

British Railways staged a small recovery.

In the Industrial market Indo-China fell away in the early stages and were down 4, but rallied later to 13½. Among stores, Marks and Spencer increased 4½d. to 59/-, but Tobaccos were again easier. Dollar stocks were also lower. French Rail bonds again declined.

Among the companies which are sharing in the great activity now operating in the shipbuilding industry attention might be paid to Yarrow and Co., which has the comparatively small capital of £150,000, all in £1 Ord. shares. These are to be split for 21/3, and yield on the basis of the 15 p.c. dividend, tax free, paid for the past two years, a return of about £4 12/- p.c. gross. Although the capital is small, the company's operations are large, the last balance sheet total being £2,315,514. Among the assets, stores and materials and work in progress account for £1,408,357.

BIRMINGHAM MOTOR MARKET.—Motors steady. Morris better at 44/3; Hobsons rose to 41/10½; Coventry Gauge and Tool, 5/3. Alvis 2, Austin ¼, 28/3, Dennis 25/-, Dunlop 39/9, Enfield 24/6, Guy 2/10½, Ford 35/7½, Humber 22/-, Leyland 78/9, Lucas 77/9, Raleigh 74/-, Rolls Royce 109/6, Rover 88/6, Singer 6/6, Standard 26/9, Triplex 38/-, Burland Stamping 32/6.

Fresh Fall in G.S.R. Stocks Guinness Again Lower

CHIEF attention was paid to Irish securities on the Dublin Stock Exchange yesterday, and markets made a moderately busy showing. Industrials developed a little irregularity, but price movements mainly favoured holders. Exceptionally Guinness units met with fresh liquidation, and fell several pence to 122/-.

Home Rails again lacked support, and renewed selling pressure drove down again. Great Southern Ord. dropped to 16, and the Pref. fell 25/- to 18½, while the Gtd. and Deb. were both lowered a point to 38 and 60 respectively.

4 p.c. Conversion Loan and 4 p.c. Land Bonds shed fractions. Irish Sugar Deb. advanced 1/6 to 108½. 3½ p.c. War Loan closed a shade off at 103⅛, and Dublin 4 p.c. 1960-85 drooped to 109½.

In Banks, Hibernians shed pence at 45/4½, but Provincial Ord. advanced 1/3 to 45/9. Alliance Gas Ord., on further profit-taking, slipped back to 22/4½, and Dublin Transport Ord. declined to 24/-.

Irish-American Oil Pref. hardened to 27/6. Arklow Pottery Ord. to 20/-, and Batchelor Ord. to 13/10½, but Ranks Pref. eased to 27/-. R. and J. Horne Deb. jumped 2/6 to 175/-, and Cement Ord. made fresh headway to 43/-.

Cream Prod. improved to 19/3. Dublin City Markets Ord. to 9, and Goodbody Ord. to 28/3. Irish Cinema Ord. firmed up to 4/3, and the Pref. to 20/-, but Independent "B" Ord. dipped to 76/4½. Alex. Thom Ord. advanced 1/- to 33/-, and the Deb. moved up to 102½, but Irish Tanners Ord. shaded off to 11/6.

Tobaccos were dull, and B.A.T. Ord. fell to 109/3. Imperial Chemical Ord. hardened to 38/10½.

Wall Street Steady

NEW YORK, Wednesday—An early advance failed to attract much support, and in the final hour most of the key issues were down from their high levels, but still moderately above the previous closing quotations.

The market closed steady. Sales totalling 596,000 shares comprised 783 issues, of which 382 advanced, 195 declined and 206 remained unchanged.—(Reuter.)

CALL FOR ABOLITION OF BACON BOARD

At a meeting of the Limerick County Committee of Agriculture yesterday, Mr. D. Quish proposed a resolution, which was passed, calling for the abolition of the Pigs and Bacon Board. A similar resolution submitted by the Roscommon County Committee, was adopted.

Mr. R. Glency said the Pigs and Bacon Board had proved a hindrance to the industry when, by insisting on keeping the prices down, they prevented the farmers from making pig production economic.

Mr. D. McAuliffe said there was something very wrong with the industry, because at a recent fair in Newcastle West there were 300 pigs on offer and no buyers, except the farmers themselves.

FEWER PIGS FOR CURING

Only 1,865 pigs were received for curing at bacon factories last week, compared with 12,343 during the corresponding week of 1941, and 3,899 in 1942. Less than quarter the number of pigs sent to the factories in 1941 came during the twelve months ended last August.

"Elastic Defence"

The results of the intense fighting on the Russian front during the last few days serve to clarify the immediate objects of the Soviet's High Command. In the sector between Bryansk and the Sea of Azov Marshal Stalin's generals obviously are making a determined effort to reach Kiev before the onset of winter; and, since the capture of Konotop last week they have been pressing steadily along th railway line that joins Kiev with Kursk and Voronezh. Yesterday Moscow announced an extremely important capture, when a special Order of the Day claimed that Russian troops had occupied the city of Nyezhin, on the banks of the middle Desna and only sixty-five miles from Kiev itself. The fall of Bryansk has changed the whole aspect of the German front in southern Russia. Its evacuation was announced by Berlin some days ago, but, according to Russian reports, German troops still are fighting in the city's streets. However this may be, there can be no doubt now that Bryansk for all practical purposes is in Russian hands. It is an exceedingly important rail and road junction. For the last two years it has formed the hinge on which the entire German front has swung. Next to Smolensk it probably is the most valuable point between Leningrad and Kiev; for it lies on the railway line between Gomel and Brest-Litowsk, and has been used by the Germans as one of their chief centres of communications. Between Bryansk and the coast of the Black Sea the Russians are attacking vigorously. They manifestly are trying to reach the line of the Dnieper, if not, indeed, that of the Bug, before the rains turn the roads into morasses, and, having smashed the German defences along the line of the Desna, are carrying out a multi-pronged offensive along a front of several hundreds of miles. Fighting was reported yesterday in the streets of Romni, on the lateral railway line from Bakhmach to Lubni and Kremenchug, on the River Sula. Farther south, the Russians are pressing on towards Priluki, which may be regarded as one of the outer forts of Kiev; and farther south again progress was reported in the thrust towards Zaporozhe and Melitopol. Even in the Caucasus, where the Germans have held an important bridge-head around Novorossisk since the relief of Stalingrad, there is talk of heavy fighting in the suburbs of the seaport town; and the German reports admit that the Russians have broken through their defences at several points near Yelnya, several hundred miles to the north in the region of Smolensk.

All these reports, taken together, indicate clearly that the Russian offensive is approaching its climax. So far it has shown no sign of a diminished tempo. On the contrary, especially since the Anglo-American landings on the Italian mainland, the violence of the Red Army's attacks seems to have increased, and the German system of "elastic defences" is being put to a strenuous test. All the German commentators agree on the essential gravity of the existing situation in Russia. Herr Hitler's generals evidently are hoping that they will be able, by means of those delaying tactics of which they are such masters, to hold the Russians at bay until the deterioration of weather conditions makes active campaigning almost impossible; but the experience of the previous two years must have taught them that the Soviet leaders are specialists in winter warfare, and that the most they can expect—unless there is a radical change in the situation within the next week or so—is to be able to hold the Dnieper line until next spring. Kiev provides the key to the whole strategic problem. If this "Mother of Cities" should fall into Russian hands, the Germans in Southern Russia would be forced to fall back upon the Dniester; they almost inevitably would lose the Crimea; and even in the north Herr Hitler's grip on White Russia would be weakened. Of course, it would be foolish to underestimate either the strength or the tactical skill of the German forces. Herr Hitler realises clearly that a major defeat in Russia before the winter would prejudice all Germany's chances against the Anglo-American alliance, and his address last week to the German people showed that he is fully alive to realities. Now that a "second front" has been established in Europe, the German High Command is face to face with the problem that confronted Hindenburg and Ludendorff twenty-eight years ago. In order to thwart the Allies' plans in Italy and the Balkans, a certain number of valuable divisions must be diverted, or at least withheld, from the Russian front. With the rapid advance of winter conditions in the east, the possibilities of a "knock-out" blow against Russia this year are dwindling. Whatever may happen either in Italy or in Russia, another winter campaign now seems to be inevitable. Germany is on the defensive; and although her troops are fighting fiercely in Italy, where the fortunes of battle are fluctuating hourly, the steady pressure of the Russian armies is bringing the tide of war closer and closer to the gates of Festung Europa.

Ships of the Air

Two major shipping companies recently have given notice of their intention to ask their shareholders for powers to engage in the carriage of passengers, goods and mails by air. The companies are the Cunard Steamship Company, the largest British transatlantic line—which seeks also powers to effect air and marine insurance policies—and Furness, Withy and Co. According to the report, the resolution of the latter company seeks powers "to establish air lines between any countries or places, to build, buy, or charter aircraft of all kinds, and to construct and maintain airfields and stations." The Cunard company, the pioneer of practical steam navigation, has given the lead also in this move by the shipping companies to assure that in the development of practical air navigation they will not be left behind. The move has a great deal of significance. Before this war, the trans-oceanic air services offered no serious competition to the shipping companies. The cost of air transport was high; the passenger traffic was limited to those business men who were prepared to pay a good deal more in order to do their journeys in hours instead of days; and the volume of cargo traffic was negligible, in comparison with that of the shipping lines. Now, it appears that the shipowners themselves anticipate a considerable increase in air traffic after the war—an increase so important that they feel it necessary to be able to offer direct competition. The case is parallel with that of railway companies which—like the G.S.R.—extended their activities to road transport, when the increase in such transport threatened to cut in too severely upon their revenue. From the resolutions—which are almost certain to be accepted by the shareholders of the respective companies—certain deductions may be drawn. The business men who have taken the decisions see that in the post-war world the airlines, for the first time, will be a real power in international transport. They see that many factors—one of them a drop of the cost of mass-produced aircraft, another the increase in the capacity of each machine—will contribute to a general lowering in the cost of air transport, and that, in turn, will have the effect of multiplying the volume. There is no question that ocean-going ships will be displaced; but for the transport of passengers, mails, and all sorts of relatively light and perishable goods, the aircraft will climb steadily to the position of primacy. What part will Ireland have in this post-war development? That is a question which we should like the business men themselves to answer.

LIVING ART—A NEW DEPARTURE

WHEN, eighty years ago, the academic painters of Paris made it clear to the young geniuses who were later to become internationally famous as the Impressionists that their work was not, by academic standards, acceptable, the Emperor Napoleon III. came to the help of the refusés and placed a gallery at their disposal for the exhibition of their pictures.

To-day, in Dublin, the Minister for Education comes, in a somewhat similar way, to the help of those Irish artists whose work is seldom seen at Royal Hibernian Academy exhibitions, but who have nevertheless achieved fame or fortune, though mostly the former, on their own merits. Mr. Derrig has lent them the Gallery at the National College of Art, where the R.H.A. spring exhibitions are held, for an "Exhibition of Living Art," which will be open to the public for nearly a month.

A gratifying Dublin modification of the Parisian precedent is that some of our most distinguished academicians, including the President, Mr. Dermod O'Brien, have chivalrously joined in the Minister's kindly gesture by sending works of their own to be judged by the "moderns" and exhibited side by side with the latter's pictures and sculptures.

The result of it all is the most vital and distinguished exhibition of work by Irish artists that has ever been held; and, as is to be expected at an exhibition in the organisation of which women artists have had as much say as men, there is everywhere evidence of that elusive quality—good taste. Yet it cannot be said that good taste has been regarded as a substitute for technical accomplishment.

GOOD TASTE.

Where the pervading (if, unfortunately, not the presiding) genius is that most analytical of modern Irish artists, Miss Mainie Jellett, good taste without ardent study would get short shrift. Those who have followed Miss Jellett's long and valiantly fought battle for "modern" art in Ireland will be sorry to hear that she is ill, and has not been able to assist at the preparation of an exhibition which is in many ways the fulfilment of her most cherished ambition.

There is only a little space in which to indicate the scope of the exhibition in terms of artists and their works. Mr. Jack Yeats has done his unacademic fellow-artists proud by including among his three contributions one of his greater achievements, "A Homage to Bret Harte," in which the note of romantic tragedy is struck with that extraordinary suggestion of power, restrained by quivering sensibility, of which only he has the secret. Grace Henry, whose most recent work lifts her to the rank of the great painters, sends among other lovely things a study of "The Reeks from Curagh Lake—Sunrise," which, in the matter of colour invention, is enough to knock any dozen academicians' work sideways; and a "Wexford Garden," which is as choice an exercise in the handling of paint as could have been found in pre-1939 Paris itself.

Miss Jellett has not been studied as a colourist, but three of her pictures, including the magnificent "Madonna of Eire," hang beside Mr. Yeats's exhibits, and stand up nobly to the exacting test. Similarly, but with drawing as the standard, Miss Swanzy's troubled figures neighbour a harshly modern study of "Tip Wagons at Poulaphouca," by Mr. Keating, and, of course, survive triumphantly. There is no question as to the vitality of Miss Swanzy's work.

Then there is Miss Hone, whose religious art—represented here by two designs for stained glass—is so movingly eloquent that we need to be reminded, as we are in this exhibition of her rare gifts as a landscape artist.

But it is not possible in one short notice to discuss all, or even a little part, of the interest of this, in its modestly Irish way, epoch-making exhibition. It may be necessary to return to it again to discuss the implications in such surroundings of the works of Nano Reid and Father Hanlon, Gerard Dillon and Norah MacGuinness, Lady Glenavy, Louis le Brocquy, Margaret Clarke, Ralph Cusack, Doreen Vanston, E. A. Maguire, Charlotte Connolly, Cecil Salkeld and many others.

One could fill a column on the works of May Guinness alone (why do we see so little of the work of the artist who can paint such an enchanting picture as "Golden Wedding in Belgium"?) or on the portraits by Frances Kelly. And no mention has yet been made of the impressive memorial exhibition of works by the late Jerome Connor, which is also included, and which, for all its mature mastery, does not put the work of our younger sculptors, such as Lawrence Campbell, out of countenance.

"ROMEO AND JULIET" AT THE CAPITOL

The revival, after thirty odd years, of "Romeo and Juliet" by the Dublin Operatic Society at the Capitol Theatre, Dublin, last night, was little short of a triumph. Although the libretto hardly does justice to Shakespeare's text, Gounod has given his singers some beautiful music. Both the orchestration and the vocal lines are strongly reminiscent of the Garden Scene in Faust, earning for the work the title "a love-duet with interruptions." Arthur Hammond, who conducted, set a high plane in his reading of the overture and the prologue—the latter being splendidly sung by the chorus. The opera was grandly cast, and it was satisfying to find the minor parts, in particular, so well filled.

Francis Russell and Ruth Naylor, as the immortal lovers, were admirable. They were always well over the music, imparting delightful shades to their singing, and acting with feeling rare on the operatic stage. The balcony scene was exquisite.

A special word of commendation must go to Edith Furmedge for her confident work as the Nurse, J. P. Burke for his vigorous study of the quarrelsome Tybalt, Reginald Morphew for clever touches as the facetious Mercutio, Leo Maguire, confident and sure as ever, as Capulet, and Cecily Kenny for her song and acting as the Page. Jack Harte played one of his most successful parts as Friar Laurence, especially in the cell scene.

The chorus were splendid, sure of their entries, keeping well together, and getting a great wealth of tone and colour into their work.

James J. Henry (producer) accomplished a magnificent job of work.

To-night—"Il Trovatore."

CRUISKEEN LAWN

By Myles na gCopaleen

"STEEL-TRACK minds"? Bah! The people who have "opinions" on Irish railway matters make me laugh. That they have "grievances" makes me laugh again. A third peal is occasioned by the fact that these "grievances" are in bad condition and stuffy, making it necessary to ventilate them (a process never attempted with the third class carriages). (I sometimes leave the "arri" out of that last word). Dear me. Well well. I have addressed the following letter to Lord Glenavy:

"Dear Glenavy—From letters appearing over your name in the newspapers I infer that you are a steam fan. Accept my oath that I make no jocose distinction as between steam and electric fans but rather that I credit you with the wish that the Irish railway world should yet enter upon a golden era, playing a noble part in the transportation problems that await us in the new Ireland when once more the sword is sheathed and happier counsels are permitted to prevail. If in this belief I do you an injustice, will you kindly let me know why my proposal for fitting Irish locomotives with thermic syphons was scotched by a boardroom ukase in 1919.
